IS IT A STEP IN ADVANCE?

After the ratification of the Alaska boundary treaty a member of the Senate foreign relations committee was asked what could be the value of a commission, which it provided which could not possibly reach a decision if the representatives of the two governments should all adhere to their own sides respectively.

The statesman replied that even in the supposed contingency there would be "a great step in advance the importance of which seemed thus far to have escaped the public." He went on to explain that for the first time a tribunal of a character to command respect would consider the boundary question. When the American commissioners, who must be jurists of established reputation, come to a decision after hearing all the testimony that decision "will be immediately accepted by the American people as final," although all the British commissioners may reach a very different conclusion.

Then, says this statesman, the President "can safely and honorably take his stand and announce to the world that the boundary of the United States will run exactly where our commissioners run it. The people here will back him up in this, and the result of the commission will therefore be a final delimitation of the panhandle of Alaska."

Those Americans who pay any attention to such things are about as well satisfied as to the right of this boundary dispute as they will be after the half-and-half commission comes to a deadlock. They are as ready to support the president in an ultimatum now as they ever will be.

A Well Planned Flight

(Original.)

A handsomely dressed man was walking back and forth on the platform of a railway station when he noticed a lady, also handsomely dressed, awaiting the train with great anxiety. "I beg pardon," he said. "You seem to be waiting for something. Can I do anything to hurry matters?"

"Oh, no. My baggage hasn't come, but it will be forwarded. There's the train now."

"May I hand you aboard the car?"

"Thank you."

They entered a parlor car, the gentleman securing the seats and taking care that they should be together. They were going to Boston and lived in adjoining towns near the city. The gentleman so won the lady's confidence that she confessed that her story about her baggage was a fabrication. She was heiress to a great estate, and relatives, in order to secure it for themselves, were endeavoring to confine her in an insane asylum. She was flying to escape the horrible doom.

"Will they not telegraph to the police to arrest you on your entrance to the city?" he asked.

"I didn't think of that." Her anxiety was turned to terror.

"If I," said the gentleman, who seemed to know more of the ways of the world than the girl. "I must think of some method by which you can elude them." He sat for awhile plunged in deep thought, then added: "My country place is situated at the next station. I keep it shut up in winter in care of a man and his wife. We are about the same height and could wear each other's clothes. What do you say to getting off there, exchanging garments and going on. I as Algernon Starkweather, you as—"

"Lucy Atterbury. But I never, never, could put on men's clothes."

"It's your only chance."

Mr. Starkweather finally convinced Miss Atterbury that donning men's attire for a few hours was much less to be dreaded than being shut up in a lunatic asylum. When they reached the next station, both left the train. Mr. Starkweather called a carriage, and they drove to the grounds of a palatial residence surrounded by many acres laid out in a marvel of landscape gardening.

"Remain here for a few minutes," said Mr. Starkweather, "while I prepare the way."

Going round to the rear of the house, he soon appeared at the front door alone. Miss Atterbury alighted and entered. In an hour the twin reappeared in vice versa costume, the lady wearing a beard, the gentleman cleanly shaved. Re-entering the carriage, they drove to the station, disgressing by the way in order not to arrive before the next train. When it came, Mr. Starkweather engaged a compartment which the two entered.

"Can I ever thank you for your kindness?" said Miss Atterbury.

"Don't mention it."

"But it has just occurred to me that it is unnecessary to disguise yourself."

"I? My disguise is necessary for this reason: You will surely have to pass the eye of the police at the Boston depot. I shall be in your company. It would never do for me to be known in this transaction. When I get you through the depot, I shall stand by you till I get you out of the city."

"How will you do that?" asked the heiress eagerly.

"We shall see."

The train drew up in the depot, and Mr. Starkweather gave Miss Atterbury his suit case to carry. Then, leaning on her arm, they alighted and were walking through the depot when they were stopped by two men.

"Rats!" said one to the other. "The description is nothing like that. This baby faced fellow doesn't tally at all."

"Right you are, but there's something suspicious about him."

"Oh, Bob," asked the lady on his arm, "what are they talking about?"

Miss Atterbury, considering her inexperience in playing such a role, carried herself so remarkably well that the men apologized and permitted her to pass on. Entering a carriage, Starkweather directed the coachman to drive to a pier on the bay. When he arrived there, he scribbled something on a bit of paper and bired a boatman to take it out to a yacht in the harbor. When the messenger returned, he brought the yacht's dingy with him, rowed by a sailor. Starkweather whispered something in his ear. Then the fugitives got into the dingy and were pulled to the yacht.

"What does all this mean?" asked Miss Atterbury, astonished.

"You shall see as soon as we get aboard."

On reaching the yacht their apparel was exchanged. When Miss Atterbury left her stateroom and went on deck, the yacht was skimming along the surface under a full head of steam.

"Why, Mr. Starkweather," she exclaimed, "what a head you have for planning! But how did your yacht happen to be ready at this time of year? I supposed such craft didn't come out till May or June."

"I'll tell you," said the gentleman in a whisper, dropping from a low bred tone to that of a low bred Englishman. "This is Starkweather's yacht, and I'm its major dome. I've got no end of his money in that suit case you lugged through the depot. I owe you one for that, and I'll pay it. But, come now, you're not flying from a lunatic asylum. You're playing a game yourself."

The lady chuckled.

"Upon my name's I've done."

"I'm Miss Atterbury's lady's maid, and I've got part of her jewels in my pockets. The rest I'm wearing."

"Well, now, we are a 'pappy pair o' birds, aren't we?"

BESSIE TURNLEE COYNE.

Jamaica As a Winter Resort

(Special Correspondence.)

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 9.—So you in the States are shivering with icy winds down your spines by day and hot water bottles to your feet nights? Here at Kingston the thermometer ranges between 70 and 80. For those who dread cold it may be said that 70 degrees is uncommonly low temperature in Jamaica; those whom extreme heat makes furious may be assured that here the register did not go above 88 during a specially noted period of ten years.

Jamaica is a mountainous island, high and dry. That is the reason there are no mosquitoes to speak of. If one wants a bit of cooler climate for a change, he has only to ascend some of the multitudinous mountains of the island, and it will become one degree cooler for every 300 feet he climbs. In the Blue mountain range in eastern

JAMAICAN NEGRO HOUSE.

Jamaica are several peaks over a mile high, and one, Blue Mountain peak itself, is nearly a mile and a half above sea level.

As usual in the States at this time of year the newspaper society notes record, I see, that this, that and the other member of the fashionable American circle has gone to southern Europe to get away from the harsh late winter and early spring winds and cold. Such a person has gone to the Riviera, or this family is cruising in the Mediterranean, or another skilled party is doing the Nile the present season.

I wonder why none of these gilded Americans cares to learn of the summer weather of winter on his own side of the world? Glorious Bermuda, the mystical Bahamas, sunny Jamaica with its pure air, health giving mineral springs and infinite—yes, infinite—possibilities for rest and sweet day dreams! Why do not Americans explore their own West Indies? Why not do their yachting over the charmed waters of their own Caribbean sea? Here is something new to be learned, something that is not the eternal feeding and flirting, dressing, gambling and parading at Nice and Monaco and other south Europe towns. Or have American rich people lost all taste for the natural and the restful?

Faith, I wonder how many Americans even know that Kingston is the capital of Jamaica. Here the English crown governor resides, and it is the leading seaport of the beautiful island. Invalids and those seeking rest after overwork and overindulgence would like Jamaica perhaps better than the gay and healthy. For it is not a wildly hilarious spot. Malaria, dysentery and yellow fever used to be here in the old Spanish times, but when the English got the island they cleaned it up, according to their custom of sanitifying their tropical colonial cities, and now Jamaica is as healthful as Switzerland and far more agreeable as to winter climate than that land of tourists.

During the Florida orange famine a few years ago Americans learned how delicious the oranges of Jamaica are. Perhaps they are the best in the world, but I don't know. At any rate, I never tasted better. Other tropical fruits are as good as the oranges too. The island is easy of access from the eastern coast of the United States, and it is only ninety miles from the eastern shore of Cuba in a southern direction.

Polo is played here, and it is the live best amusement English residents on gaze in. The ponies used are the Barb saved off creatures of the horse tribe peculiar to tropical countries. Intense heat seems to dwarf the horse. It does not, however, stunt his strength. Familiar with mountain climbing, the small Jamaican ponies are very sure footed. In proportion to their size they are stronger than a Clydesdale, and they are sound of wind and extremely spirited. They make, therefore, excellent polo ponies. Numerous good things are produced in this island apart from Jamaica cane and Jamaica ginger.

The island is nearer the equator than either Havana or the Philippines, it lies equidistant in latitude 17 degrees to 18 degrees north, because of its elevation above sea level, it is cooler than either. Every morning here a cool wind, called "the doocut" begins to blow off the sea about 10 o'clock. It lasts until 4. In the evening the pure, fresh air comes down from the hills, and that forms a cool land breeze.

WILHELMINA SCHIFF.

HIS BALANCE WHEEL

(Original.)

Herbert Mathewson was a very bright fellow. He was not only bright, but practical. Before he was thirty he had accumulated a snug little fortune, and since, to use a paradoxical expression, no one feels so old as a young person he concluded that his work was finished and that he would retire from business and devote himself to travel. He got no farther than Florence, Italy, when he met an American family and fell in love with one of the daughters, who was studying art. He spent a winter there winning one thing and losing another. What he won was Kate Spencer's heart; what he lost was his fortune. A part of each day he was with Kate, either in her studio or gadding. In the evenings after 11 o'clock he was always at a club, where he developed a passion for gambling. It was there that he dropped his accumulations.

One spring morning he borrowed sufficient means from his prospective father-in-law to take him back to America. This was a disappointment both to himself and to Kate, who had promised to be his wife. But Herbert was plucky and had plenty of confidence. He told Kate that three years at most would see him as well off as he had been when he reached Florence. Spurred on by love, he went to work in earnest and was lucky enough to regain all he had lost. Two years after his departure from Florence he returned there to claim his bride.

"Herbert," said Kate, "suppose your old habit of gambling should come back to you. We might have to wait two years more, and papa says that every time a man begins over again it is much harder. You might never make another fortune."

"No, thank you; no more gambling for me. Let us be married at once and go for a trip to Egypt."

"Remain in Florence just long enough to test your resolution. Then it shall be as you desire."

A few evenings later Kate proposed that she and Herbert should amuse themselves with a game of cards, without a stake, of course. Herbert rather objected at first. Cards had the same effect over him that drinking at a soda fountain might have over a drunkard. They were liable to kindle a desire for the real game. Kate urged him, however, and he consented. They had not played long before Count Guilmo Marini, a friend of the Spencers, came in and was invited to take a hand. He did so, but soon began to yawn, then proposed that they play for a small stake to make the game interesting.

A paul was quite enough. A flush came to Herbert's cheek. Kate was watching him to see what he would do. He looked at her to see what she wished him to do. To his surprise, she said:

"To play for a little stake like that is no harm."

In half an hour the game had grown to such proportions that Kate withdrew. As soon as she had left the table the other two not only raised the stakes, but raised the limit. Kate took a seat at another table, took up a book and began to read, now and again casting a troubled glance at her lover. At 11 o'clock the count proposed to end the game, but Herbert insisted on going on, inasmuch as he had lost nearly half of his fortune. Then the count proposed to adjourn the sitting to his club. To this Kate objected and told them either to cease to play or continue where they were.

At 1 o'clock Herbert begged his fiancée to go to bed. She declined. At 2 she asked how the game stood, and Herbert told her that he had lost nearly everything he possessed. At 3 he excitedly announced that he had regained three-quarters of his losses. Then he proposed to double both stake and limit, to which the count consented. At 4 Herbert had but a thousand dollars in the world. Kate got up from her seat, went over to the table where the two were playing and looked at the game. Herbert, who was betting high, won $2,000 on one hand and lost $2,000 on the next. Taking out a pencil, he figured his losses and found that he had nothing left. He looked up at Kate pitifully. They must wait till he had made another fortune. But it was not this that caused the greater suffering. It was that the passion for gambling had him again in its toils.

Kate put her arms about him.

"Herbert," she said, "when you proposed to be married at once and visit Egypt I did not believe the plan was advisable. It is plain that you must be at work in order to refrain from gambling, for you know that when you are busy you have no temptation to do so. If you like, we will be married tomorrow, or rather, today, and go at once to America, you to take up your business as soon as you arrive."

"Signorina," interrupted the count, "although I am a close friend of your family, it is a meet that I should be present at this interview. Permit me to settle accounts with you, and I will withdraw. As your agent I have succeeded very well. I should not boast, for though I rarely play, I am considered the most expert player at my club. This of Mr. H. which, with a wedding couple, the or sleepy looking, call an embassy and were clock they took a train to New York."

Herbert H. away never touched a card again.

ROGER T. HOWELL.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is fading away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—MRS. FLORENCE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.

A medicine that has restored so many women to health and can produce proof of the fact must be regarded with respect. This is the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which cannot be equaled by any other medicine the world has ever produced. Here is another case:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I was troubled with falling of the womb, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhoea, bearing-down pains, backache, headache, dizzy and fainting spells, and stomach trouble. I doctored for about five years but did not seem to improve. I began the use of your medicine, and have taken seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, three of Blood Purifier, and also used the Sensitive Wash and Liver Pills, and am now enjoying good health, and have gained in flesh. I thank you very much for what you have done for me, and heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering women."—MISS EMMA SNYDER, 218 East Center St., Marion, Ohio.

"FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN."

Women would save time and much sickness if they would write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice as soon as any distressing symptoms appear. It is free, and has put thousands of women on the right road to recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

A STRENGTHENER

Vinol Promptly Overcomes Weakness.

DEBILITY OFTEN PRECEDES COMPLETE COLLAPSE.

We Want Every One to Know How to Get Strong.

OUR VINOL IS A STRENGTH CREATOR.

The saddest sight on earth is a broken-down man or woman.

We see such people every day right here in our city.

It is pitiful to see a man that should be in his prime dragging himself through life dejected, discouraged and broken down, due to some premature weakness. It does not make any difference whether this weakness is the result of dissipation, indiscreet living or disease; it can be overcome.

We have known of many very serious cases of debility quickly overcome by Vinol.

Vinol is a scientific re-builder and strength creator. It contains the active curative principles of Cod-Liver Oil in a highly concentrated form. The benefit that can be derived from the use of these properties is so well known that there is no need for us to enter into that subject.

We could quote many instances where Vinol has done good; as an example, here is one coming from Jane S. Fenner, a prominent member of the W. C. T. U., and a resident of Suncook, N. H. She writes:

"I was run down, was in bed from May to March. Was so nervous and sickly that every one thought I was in a most precarious condition. My weight was reduced to 130 pounds. I was advised to take Vinol, which I did, and am now very much better, and am able to be about again. As a re-builder and a strength giver nothing can equal it. Vinol is a God-blessing to anybody."

Because Vinol is delicious, and because it does contain these much-sought-after medicinal properties we endorse it, and we unhesitatingly proclaim that it is better than any preparation of cod-liver oil or tonic re-builder we have ever had in our store.

Dr. Black's Cough Syrup

Many Newark people know what a good friend it has been in time of need and how it has cured hundreds of coughs and colds that threatened to develop into something worse. It is a good old fashioned remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs such as coughs, colds, bronchitis and whooping cough. Crayton's Cough Cure never disappoints.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Auditorium tonight Charles Frohman will present his latest successful comedy "The Two Schools" which crowded the Madison Square Theatre, New York to the doors. This comedy by Alfred Capus, which ran for two years in Paris, is said to be by far the brightest of all the French comedies that have been presented in New York, and the facts that it was acted with brilliancy and the proper spirit and touch by the excellent company which Charles Frohman has put into it has a great deal to do with its success. The play furnishes a feature of great interest to those who are romantically inclined. It is a scene in which the separated young husband and wife, meet and attempt to make up. It proves to be an entertaining and instructive lesson in the art of settling lovers' quarrels, and is acted in a splendid and convincing manner. "The Two Schools" will be presented here tonight with the entire original cast, and the same scenery and effects that were used in New York.

TOMORROW NIGHT.

The papers speak in complimentary terms of the Juvenile Minstrels which are billed for the Auditorium February 18, tomorrow night. Master Robin Freeman, "the boy that wins them all," is with Hilton Spencer & Hoffman's big minstrel show which comes to the Auditorium tomorrow evening.

THE LIBERTY BELLES.

Harry B. Smith's new musical comedy "The Liberty Belles," which Frank Hennessy will present at the Auditorium February 20, next Friday night, is in three acts. The scenes represent a dormitory in a young woman's seminary, a cooking school and a hotel in Florida. The first scene is said to have created a sensation, in representing twenty young girl students indulging in a clandestine midnight supper. All the girls are in deshabille costume, one wearing a suit of pink pajamas. This incident is handled so daintily and with such good judgment, that it has given offense to no one. On the contrary, it has been most highly praised by the New York newspapers for its purity and novelty. The 22 young women employed in this production are said to be noted stage beauties and "The Liberty Belles" is regarded as the greater exposition of feminine loveliness.

NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT.

One of the most conspicuous events of the theatrical season at the Auditorium will be Porter J. White's elaborate revival of George H. Boker's dramatization of Francesca da Rimini, on next Saturday night, Feb. 21. In Francesca da Rimini the young and popular actor has selected a play whose demands are of the highest order of artistic attainments, and that that fact has been fully realized by the actor is evidenced by the excellent character of the company he has engaged. The lavish outlay in the scenic department and in every detail of the preliminary announcements. The love of Paolo and Lanciotto of course, constitutes the basic theme of the play and in its exploitation a variety of human sentiment is displayed which provides the dramatist with excellent material for the building of a story calculated to hold attention.

MEMORABLE YEAR

For Newark When it Was Small Town

The State Fair That Made it Famous, and the Cholera That Scourged it in 1853—Interesting Reminiscence of the Eventful Time.

"The year 1854 was a memorable year in Newark, said a well known resident of Newark to an Advocate reporter on Monday. Newark was then a small town or village of perhaps 3,000 inhabitants, and in addition to the usual important and unimportant events that would occur in a place of that size in a twelve-month, two events of unusual interest did occur in that year.

One of these events was the holding of the Ohio State Fair in Newark for the first and last time. The other was the appearance of the cholera as an epidemic in this city, for the third and last time, up to date, and let us hope forever. Although Newark had no hustling Board of Trade in 1854 to bring great enterprises to the city, as she fortunately has now, yet she had a few enterprising citizens, and they succeeded in securing the location of the Ohio State Fair in Newark for that year. Newark's central location was a great argument in her favor, as was also the "Old Fort," plenty large enough, and a very desirable location in every way for the State Fair of nearly fifty years ago. All preparations had been made for holding the fair on a large scale at that time. The grounds had been prepared and all but final arrangements made. Perhaps some of the exhibits were actually on hand, when the cholera broke out in an epidemic form in the city. This, of course, stopped all preparations for the fair, which was postponed until late in October, at which time the epidemic had completely abated, and as there was no longer any danger from it, the State Fair was held here, and proved a great success in every particular, and was a great advertisement for the town. Such local residents of the county and city as Col. William Veach, Pressly and Thomas O'Bannon, Gen. George B. Wright, William Stanberry, Thomas Maholm, St., and others were prominent in making the fair a success.

The epidemic of cholera, which raged here with considerable violence during the spring and summer of 1854, was the third epidemic of the kind that had visited Newark—one in the thirties, one in the forties, and the last epidemic in 1854—carrying death and devastation in its wake. During the early sieges of the cholera a number of prominent citizens, as the Hon. Joshua Mathiot, then Newark's leading lawyer, and Dr. Cooper, a leading physician of that day, whose home was the old stone mansion on North Third street, fell victims to the disease. A large number of Newark's citizens of all classes perished during the epidemic of 1854, and the facts show that the deaths were not always due to bad sanitary conditions, as a number of people died whose homes were models of cleanliness. During the epidemic a large percentage of the then small population of the village perished. The people became panic stricken to a large degree, and trade between the town and country almost stopped. So rapidly did the epidemic spread, and so many were the deaths therefrom, that it became almost impossible to procure proper nursing for the dying and proper interment for the dead. Mr. Clement Brooke, a brother of Dr. John Brooke, Mr. Dillon Brooke and the venerable Mrs. Ocheltree, who still lives here, was the undertaker of the town, and laid out and buried many of the dead from cholera. As a consequence he contracted the disease himself and he and his entire family died from it with the exception of two children.

Not to Blame.

who are still living. Mr. Brooke's undertaking establishment was in the old frame building on West Main street, where the Fleck and Zartman brick building now stands.

Another faithful attendant of the dying and dead was the late William Marvin, father of William Marvin, the well known carpenter of this city, whose home still stands on West Main street, near Sixth street. Mr. Marvin, Sr., laid out and helped to inter many of the dead from cholera, when no other help could be had.

A touching incident of the epidemic was the wiping out of an entire family by the name of Tobin, with the exception of a little boy about four years old named Tommy, who was left alone in the world without home or friends. He was a bright little fellow and was adopted by the late J. L. Preston, after whom the old Tabbs House was named, and who kept a leading boot and shoe store in this city some years ago. Tommy lived to be about eight years old when he was crushed to death by the caving in of a bank on the school house commons, just west of the Central School building, on West Church street, about where Mr. A. F. Crayton now lives. At the same time, as we remember, the late C. D. Barrows, since then Mayor of Newark, had an arm broken.

A legend of the cholera epidemic of 1854, or possibly one of the prior epidemics, is to the effect that a number of Italians, who were working on the Pan Handle railroad track that used to enter Newark along Indiana street, and where the Indiana creek bridge now stands, died with the cholera while at work and were buried in the railroad embankment. Subsequently after the Pan Handle track was changed to its present location, and the old embankment was being graded and leveled, a number of skeletons were dug up, supposed to be those of the cholera victims.

Long ago as this epidemic occurred, nearly half a century, the Advocate had been in existence for many years and of course was the leading paper of the town. An amusing incident was related concerning the circulation of the Advocate in the city during the cholera epidemic. There was no free delivery in the city at that time, and each editor had to see to it that his paper was delivered to its subscribers, which was not such a difficult task then as it would be now. Mr. Benjamin Briggs, who founded the Advocate in 1820, was still running and editing it during one of these cholera epidemics. A gentleman who has since gone the way of all the earth, told our narrator that he was a good sized boy during the epidemic, and was carrying the paper for Mr. Briggs. It was warm weather and Mr. Briggs attired in his familiar tow-linen suit and straw hat, carried the weekly issue of the Advocate in a market basket on his arm. He would go to a street where there were cholera cases and point out the houses of his subscribers to the lad. The latter would then start on a run with the papers and deliver them as quickly as he could, holding his nose and almost holding his breath as he passed the infected houses.

Many of the cholera victims were interred in the old grave yard on West Main street. Their physicians, nurses and friends have generally passed away to the great unknown, and the cholera epidemic of 1854 is only a faint memory in the recollection of the comparatively few survivors of that period.

CONGRESS

SENATE PASSES A BILL FOR FILLING UP MONEY.

Currency Bill a Possibility of This Session—The Fowler Bill a Continuing Order.

Washington, Feb. 17.—A special order was adopted by the House which practically makes the Fowler currency bill a continuing order for the remainder of the session, not, however, to interfere with conference reports, appropriation bills and other privileged matters.

Mr. Dalzell (Pa.) from the committee on rules reported a special order to give the Fowler currency bill the same privilege accorded bills reported from committees, having leave to report at any time.

Mr. Hepburn (Ia.) asked if the effect of the rule would not be to make it a continuing order for the remainder of the session and virtually shut out everything else which was not privileged.

Mr. Dalzell practically assented to this interpretation.

Mr. Cannon (Ill.) called attention to the late day in the session and expressed the opinion that it was too late to properly consider currency legislation.

Still he would not vote against giving the Fowler bill consideration. If it should eventually pass, he said, he hoped it would be after careful consideration and amendment in important particulars.

The Indian appropriation bill and the Philippine currency bill both were passed by the Senate.

The Philippine currency bill prescribes that the unit of value in the Philippines shall be the gold peso of 12 and nine-tenths of gold, nine-tenths fine, said gold peso to become the unit of value when the government in the Philippines shall have coined and ready for circulation not less than five million of the silver pesos provided for in the bill.

The gold coins of the United States, at the rate of one dollar for two pesos, shall be legal tender in the islands.

The bill also provides for an additional coinage of seventy-five million silver coins of the denomination of one peso, which shall be legal tender except where provided for by contract.

In the House the most important measure passed was the senate bill to compel railways to equip their cars with automatic couplers.

Mr. Grosvenor (O.) explained that a misunderstanding existed among the members of labor organizations relative to the parliamentary status of this bill. It had never been, he said, before the committee on rules. Speaking of the merits of the bill, he said that many of the labor organizations strongly opposed the amendment permitting the interstate commerce commission to allow companies to equip 50 per cent of their cars, but they preferred to have the bill pass with this amendment in it than to have it fail.

The Senate committee on the judiciary concluded consideration of the Littlefield anti-trust bill and decided to report to the Senate with the following changes:

Section pertaining to rates is stricken out entirely because the question of rebates is covered by the Elkins bill, which already has passed both houses.

Section 5 was not changed, but section 6, authorizing and defining the legal process for enforcing the proposed law, was cancelled. That provision was taken out because the ground is covered by the substitute for section 7.

The house bill awards damages "three-fold" to persons or corporations injured by other persons or corporations, under the provisions of the proposed act. The committee struck out the words "three-fold," providing only for damages and cost of suit.

ADVERTISING

MUST GO ON IN SEASON AND OUT OF SEASON.

An Apt Illustration of Its Worth—Goods Must be Kept Before the Public.

The advertising that is continuous; that pegs away in season and out of season; that never "lets up" at any time, but keeps on hammering away with an insistence, must "win out," no matter what it may have to contend with, and despite obstacles of any nature, says an exchange. It is not within the possibilities that such a campaign will fail, if the object so advertised has but ordinary merit. All this has been recognized as one of the first principles of advertising, and it has been said almost more frequently than any other advertising axiom.

But one reason for this success has been comparatively little commented upon. Advertising of this kind takes advantage of one phase of the human mental makeup, which is rarely defined. This is the fact that the advertising in question often makes a clear and lasting impression, without the recognition that it has even been noticed.

It is hard to define the process by which such continuous knocking at the door of the mind makes its way to success yet leaves us without the knowledge even that there has been such knocking. Those upon whom the impression has been made—and that means very nearly everybody, with one object or another, at one time or another, fail generally to notice that an impression has been made, so insignificant does the whole matter seem to be.

For want of a better name some have used the term "unconscious persuasion" in describing the process. To the lay mind this seems a thoroughly satisfactory term—indeed, a very felicitous one. An illustration is the best method of exemplifying the matter.

Let us suppose your wife to say to you some morning just as you are on the point of starting off for your office, your thought meanwhile more or less immersed in your business, "John the rats down in the cellar are getting to be a pretty bad nuisance. I wish you would try to remember not to forget to buy a good trap on your way home." Your natural reply will be, "Hang it! What do I know about rat traps? I never hear one in my life."

You were perfectly sincere when you said you did not know anything about rat traps. And before you have gone very far you'll be reminded of all about the matter. It may not come back to you now, for you are, but perhaps as a matter of fact you'll recall the reminder. And a suggestion like that of John the rat trap, you see, is a very effective one.

Catch 'Em Rat Traps."

So on your way home you stop at a hardware store and stepping up to the counter in a confused tone you ask for just that article, secure it and bring it to your wife easy in your mind that you have in every way done the proper thing. If your wife in the morning asked you to bring a foot warmer or a carpet sweeper home you might feel yourself in the same predicament, yet find the same solution.

There was no magic about the fact that at the moment that you required the rat trap the name of that special one came to your mind. You had seen the name a great number of times. It had become engrained on the tablets of your memory without an effort, and almost without your consciousness. Hundreds of facts lie fallow in every mind, even the least orderly. Some of them may never come to the surface because there will be no call for them. Few of them will have been forgotten if they are not called to mind. This is one of the fundamental principles which governs the advertiser's bank account, and which should be the wisest of them all. A consideration of all this.

EGG BAKING POWDER CO.

Gentlemen:—We take great pleasure in recommending Egg Baking Powder to every one. We could not be induced to use anything else. The purity and health-giving qualities of are most favorably known. It is so easy for the housewife to test each can of Baking Powder, and if she finds residuum in the glass to immediately return it to the grocer. This use of impure baking powders, not alone confined to the cheap powders, is unquestionably the cause for the great increase of dyspepsia. No punishment too great could be meted out to unscrupulous manufacturers who for petty gain are willing to destroy the health of the people. May the good work you are doing go on, and our hearty co-operation you have at all times.

ADDICKS DEFIES BOLTERS

Offers the "Regulars" One Senator But Says He Must Be the Other—Man From Delaware Makes a Remarkable Statement.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 17.—The following statement was issued last night by J. Edward Addicks, the "union" Republican candidate for United States Senator:

"On the Republican side there are but two things the bolters can do. First, the 10 men now voting against J. Edward Addicks can come into a common caucus of 31 Republicans. In this case Addicks will withdraw and his 21 friends will nominate two 'union' Republican Senators, as near to Addicks as possible, and the whole 31 will elect them.

"Of course, if the bolters can find any way whereby 10 men can beat 21, they can nominate one of the Senators.

"Second, each side can elect one Senator without dictation from the other side. In this case Addicks will be the choice of the 'union' Republicans.

"On the Democratic side the Democrats can join the bolters and elect anybody the coalition pleases.

"This cannot be prevented by the 'union' Republicans and they would not lift a hand to prevent it.

"As to the future of the 'union' Republicans in no event will any more notice be taken of the bolters in New Castle county.

"No more common primaries will be tolerated which would be binding or honorable 'union' Republicans and not binding on bolters.

"No man who refused to vote for J. Edward Addicks in the legislature will ever be allowed to hold any office in Delaware, nor will any bolter sympathizers be permitted to come to the front.

"'Union' Republicans will nominate a straight ticket in Wilmington and throughout the state in the long future.

"As to the appointments, Congressman Ball cannot get a federal appointment.

"After March 5, the appointments, according to custom, ought to go to the chairman of the 'union' Republican state committee and the national committeeman, J. Edward Addicks.

"We shall see where the power will lie.

"J. EDWARD ADDICKS."

VICTIMS

Of Turf Investment Companies Planning Mass Meeting—Ryan Arrested at St. Louis.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Continuing their policy of aggression against turf investment companies, the police raided the office of J. C. Rose & Company. They found the doors locked, but upon threats of breaking them down, the agent of the building was induced to admit the police. A thorough search of the office disclosed the fact that all the company's books had disappeared, only a few papers being found in outside drawers.

When Benedict & Company's office was opened 200 persons were waiting at the door, all of whom held certificates of investment upon which they demanded returns. The crush became so great that all the doors were locked and only one person at a time was admitted. By noon $10,000 had passed from the company to the investors.

The case of Harry Broleski, whose name was raised Friday, was continued on Feb. 23. Broleski being held under $500 bonds. G. W. Toren and H. R. Blackstone managers of the Mid-Continent investment company, also were granted continuances.

A mass meeting of victims of the turf investment companies will be held today in order to map out a campaign of prosecution.

St. Louis, Feb. 17.—John J. Ryan, head of the turf investment company bearing his name, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a bench warrant issued by Judge Douglas.

SENATE

Spent Money for Quinine. Serving Sets. Fashion Books, Jewel Cases. Etc., for its Members.

Washington, Feb. 17.—After buying everything from sawdust and snuff to attar of roses the United States Senate spent $3,632.40 last year for mineral waters to slake the Senatorial thirst, according to the report of Chas. G. Bennett, its Secretary.

It appears that every Senator must take about 150 grains of quinine in order to keep at his duties, for the report states that some 1,000 grains of quinine in pills were bought for the use of the Senate. Just now there is much speculation as to who bought a "sawing set" for $1.75 and a fashion book. Members of the House who use $55 back-lash stands are having much amusement over the sawing set item in the Secretary's report of the Senate's expenditures.

Some of the mysteries of the committee rooms are unraveled by the Secretary's report, which shows that 12 pairs of playing cards and two domino sets were bought for Senators during the last fiscal year. It is now known why Senators walk off in pairs when a long speech is being given.

Some Senator had bought for his use a gold case; another got a pair of rubber boots; and a third ordered saw-cut, corner-crow knives and a Gubon calendar. Another frugal statesman ordered an oil stove. Two thirds of the Senate during the course of the year.

CITY COUNCIL

CEDAR STREET PAVING BIDS ARE READ.

Teamsters Ask $4 for Nine Hours—
The Council Has Been a Friend of Labor.

The City Council was called to order Monday evening with eleven members present, those absent being Messrs. Davis, Miller, H. Moser, Shaw and Smith.

After the reading and approval of the minutes the bids received for the paving and curbing of Cedar street were read and referred to street committee.

A petition signed by the property owners of the south side of Hoover street to construct a sidewalk on the south side of that street between Buckingham and Tenth streets. A resolution was offered to this effect.

A petition from the property owners along Cedar street was read, requesting Council to use sand stone instead of Bera stone for curbing on account of the difference in the cost.

A petition requesting the appointment of John McConnell as inspector of paving on Cedar street was read and referred to the street committee.

The Teamsters' Union presented a statement that the Union had raised the scale of wages from $3.50 to $4.00 the new scale to go into effect May 1st. A nine-hour day is also called for.

Wm. W. Connell, business agent of the Team Drivers' Union, No. 258, was present and thanked Council for raising wages from $3 to $3.50 per day in view of the fact that horse shoeing and feed costs more now he thought council should submit to the proposed raise to $4 per day. On request of Mr. Connell the matter was referred to the labor committee of council who will meet and discuss the question with Mr. Connell.

An ordinance fixing the bonds of the city officials under the new code was given its second reading.

A resolution to construct a sidewalk on the south side of West Church street between Twelfth and Thirtieth streets was read for the second time.

A resolution to construct a sidewalk on the north side of Andover street between Cedar street and Penny avenue was given its second reading. A resolution to construct sidewalks on the south side of the street was also read for the second time.

A resolution for the construction of sidewalks on both sides of Grant street between Williams and Union streets was read for the first time.

The resolution to have all ordinances relating to municipal government under the new code printed in the American-Tribune as well as in the Advocate was resurrected. Solicitor Smythe stated that at the meeting of the Municipal League in Dayton every city solicitor present excepting the solicitor of Zanesville had held that the law under the new code requiring municipal printing to be published in two papers should not go into effect until the first of May. Under this ruling Council deemed it proper to drop the matter without taking further action.

A resolution, presented by Mr. Fromholtz, for the placing of a light at the corner of Indiana and North Gay street was adopted.

J. R. Moser presented a resolution referring the addition and plat of John Moser to the street committee and city solicitor, which was adopted.

A resolution recommending to the County Commissioners the construction of a bridge across Raccoon creek on Jefferson street was referred to the bridge committee. The resolution was prepared by J. R. Moser.

Mr. Moser stated that a lot belonging to John Reeves on the west side of Pine street, was the cause of much disturbance in that locality as water stood in it and gave forth foul odors. A resolution was read placing the matter in the hands of the city solicitor.

Wm. W. Connell, business agent of Team Drivers' Union, stated Monday evening to an Advocate reporter that the report circulated by some well meaning gentlemen to the effect that labor could not get a hearing under the present council, is "pure rot". He said: "Council has always treated our union with the greatest courtesy and have been more than fair. I am in a position to know. The council has granted every request made of them by our union."

Paine's Celery Compound

The Great Nerve Builder and Blood Purifier.

A Remarkable Restoration of Health After Failures of Physicians.

Fully half of the indisposed, weakly, and sick people around us are victims of nerve troubles and unhealthy blood. They seem to forget one important fact, "that the nerves regulate the blood supply through the body." It is now an accepted fact that upon the action of the nerves depends health and happiness. Diseased and flabby nerves bring on insomnia, dyspepsia, headache, prostration irritability and lassitude; these in due course cause more serious ills. Paine's Celery Compound is the only medicine that can bestow a full and lasting measure of health to men and women who suffer from nerve and blood troubles. This wonderful agent feels, nourishes and strengthens all the nerve centers, purifies and enriches the blood, tones the stomach, and invigorates the entire nervous system. Miss Mary Dahl, Richville, Mich., writes thus:

"For two years I have suffered with dyspepsia, debilitated nervous system, and palpitation of the heart. I had an awful bad feeling in my stomach, and a bad taste in my mouth. I tried three different physicians, but could gain no relief from any of them. At last I heard of Paine's Celery Compound, used it, and owe my restoration to health to my use of that grand medicine. I only took four bottles, and it cured me."

FUNERAL

Of Mrs. B. C. Fleming Who Died Near Irville, Ohio, Takes Place Wednesday Morning.

As briefly announced Monday, Mrs. B. C. Fleming died at her home near Irville, Muskingum county, early Monday morning at the age of 76 years and 11 days. The deceased was the widow of Daniel Fleming who died about 25 years ago. She leaves seven children: Mrs. H. R. Ward of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Chas. Colory of Newark; Mrs. Albert Woodward, who moved from this city to the home of her mother about two years ago to take care of her mother who has been in poor health for some time. The other children are William of Licking county, U. G. of Toledo, Ohio, F. M. and Joseph of Irville, O. All of the children were at the bedside of their mother when she passed away, except F. G. and William, who are detained at home on account of sickness.

Mrs. Fleming was a woman with a gentle heart and no one in want ever left her door empty handed. She was loved and respected by all who knew her and will be greatly missed in the peaceful abode where she lived. The funeral will be held at the M. E. church at Irville, of which she was a member on Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. Services conducted by Rev. Mr. Bishop.

HONOR

Came to Licking County at the Ohio State Dairyman's Meeting in Columbus.

The ninth annual convention of the Ohio State Dairyman's Association met Feb. 12, for a two days session in Townsend Hall, Ohio State University. This has been pronounced by all in attendance the most successful meeting the association has ever held in point of numbers in attendance and also in interest and enthusiasm.

The only disappointing thing in connection with the program was the illness of the governor, which prevented his being present. His place was admirably filled by the secretary of state, who welcomed those in attendance at the meeting to the best Columbus and the O. S. U. afforded.

We were also favored with an address by Hon. Horace Ankeny, dairy and food commissioner of the state. He impressed the audience as being a man who intended doing his full duty no matter who got nit.

Licking county came in for her full share of honors, as she generally does. Mr. W. W. Davis of the Licking county creamery, was elected member of the board of directors. This is quite an honor when we consider his receiving a larger number of votes than such good men as Profs. Decker and Hunt.

Mr. Ashman of the Vanatia creamery had butter on exhibition and received score of 92. This we thought very creditable as the gold medal exhibit only scored 94.

The highest score made was 97 points. This by an exhibitor from Indiana who of course could not compete for a prize. Mr. Ashman's pro rata premium was eight dollars. KING.
